Leave For Honeymoon

Meg Married In Pageantry

LONDON (AP)—Beautiful Princess Margaret murmured "I will" in Westminster Abbey Friday and then, as Mrs. Antony Armstrong-Jones, sailed away for a $100,000 honeymoon in the tropics.

Chorus of "good luck" and "God bless you," followed the couple as the royal yacht Britannia carried them down the Thames.

A million or more persons crowded London's streets for the pageantry, the most spectacular in Britain since the coronation.

Tears flowed. Surging crowds stormed through police cordons. Well-wishers showered the bridal pair with rose petals. Applause volleyed through the streets.

Crowning it all was the solemn Anglican service of marriage—and the romance of a princess with a commoner.

Margaret is the first British princess in nearly 500 years to marry a man without a title.

There was only one moment of faltering in the ceremony. It came as she was repeating words intoned by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher.

"I, Margaret Rose, take thee, Antony Charles Robert, to my wedded husband, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better for worse." Then she paused.

The microphone hanging directly over her head picked up what sounded like a half-choked murmur—evidently she started to recite the next phrase.

"For better for worse," the archbishop said again.

Her voice, low but audible, repeated it and the rites continued. Another hitch developed on the drive to the point of embarkation. The bridal car became snarled in the crush of traffic that has been plaguing London for days.

Spectators broke police lines—as they did earlier in the day at Buckingham Palace—and engulfed the car. The car edged along at a walking pace for a quarter of a mile, as police struggled to clear a path.

Eventually the newlyweds reached dockside and the royal barge took them to the yacht. Moments later, the Britannia—her newly painted blue hull gleaming like a mirror—moved gently down the river.

The 5-foot-2 bride and her husband, an inch taller, stood on the bridge, waving and smiling. The Royal Marine band, oblivious of the fact that it was 5:33 p.m., played "Oh, What a Beautiful Morning!"

Ike Casts Some Doubt On June Trip To Russia

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower cast doubt Friday on whether he will go through with his visit to the Soviet Union in June.

"If I go to Russia," was the way Eisenhower mentioned his proposed trip in an offhand remark, without further explanation.

The remark came after a White House spokesman had said the President was fully informed about the bitter wave of anti-U.S. declarations coming from Premier Nikita Khrushchev and other Soviet leaders at the Supreme Soviet meeting in Moscow.

Th Red leaders have aimed broadsides at America, at Eisenhower, at Vice President Richard M. Nixon and boasted of shooting down a U. S. plane inside the Soviet Union last Sunday under Khrushchev's personal orders.

In related developments:

1. A State Department spokesman disputed Khrushchev's accusation that the U. S. plane was on a deliberately aggressive, provocative mission.

Press officer Lincoln White said the United States assumes that the pilot of an unarmed American weather plane missing near the Turkish-Soviet border Sunday "blackened out" and might have crossed into Soviet territory.

There was and never has been any "attempt to deliberately violate Soviet air space," he said.

2. The U. S. government formally asked the Soviet Union for "full facts" of the Soviet inquiry into the plane incident and for information about the missing pilot, Francis C. Powers, 30, of Pound, Va.

The United States made its request through a note sent by Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson to the Soviet Foreign Office in Moscow.

3. U. S. officials still were not certain that the plane Khrushchev talked about is the missing American craft.

Khrushchev said an American craft was downed at 5:36 a. m. Moscow time on Sunday. This is nearly 3½ hours earlier than the hour at which U. S. officials say the American plane took off from Adana, Turkey.

While no official, complete U.S. statement was planned until a reply is received from the Soviet Union.

ion, authorities here were greatly concerned over the developments in what appeared to be a deliberate get-tough campaign by Khrushchev in advance of the summit parley starting in Paris May 16.

U. S. authorities figured the Soviet Union was trying to force Eisenhower into a trap at the summit gathering under which Eisenhower would either have to make concessions or take blame for failure of the conference.

Daily Record Sets Series On Prelude To Conference

HEADS OF STATE of the Big Four Powers—the United States, Great Britain, France and Russia—will open their much-heralded summit talks May 16.

As a prelude to the historic conference, The Daily Record will carry a series of four articles analyzing some contemporary problems connected with the diplomacy of President Eisenhower on the basis of a precedent which offers meaningful lessons.

The precedent is Woodrow Wilson's participation at the Paris Peace Conference in 1918-1919.

The articles were prepared by Dr. Kurt Wimer, professor of American government and international relations at East Stroudsburg State College. He has done extensive research on the life of former President Wilson and is considered an authority on the subject.

Watch for the timely series, "Woodrow Wilson Leads the Way to the Summit," starting Monday, May 9 in The Daily Record.

Depressed Areas Measure Is Sent To Ike By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate sent President Eisenhower a 251-million-dollar depressed areas aid bill Friday but the 45-32 vote fell far short of two-thirds needed to override an expected veto.

The Democratic-backed measure would authorize federal loans and grants to try to create new jobs in areas long suffering from unemployment.

Only last Tuesday the President urged Congress not to pass such a broad measure, but instead to send him the administration's 33-million-dollar bill.

Democrats are confident, however, that they have created a potent political issue for the fall campaign, even if the legislation falls before a veto.

Eisenhower killed a similar program with a pocket veto in 1958.

Democrats have credited this with helping greatly their sweep in the congressional elections this fall.

The Senate accepted House changes cutting down the original Senate bill which totaled 389½ million dollars. The margin was seven less than needed to override a veto.

The 201-184 House vote by which the House cleared the bill Wednesday was even further from a two-thirds majority.

The bill would make available 150 million dollars for loans in depressed industrial and rural areas to try to attract new industries.

Another 50 million in loans would be authorized for building public facilities such as water systems needed for new plants. There also would be 35 million in grants for communities too poor to handle loans for such facilities.

Journey Request Traps Suspect

THE OFFER of a $10 bill in a hotel bar yesterday resulted in the capture of one of two men who robbed the West End Branch of Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. Wednesday.

Anthony Dotta of Bangor, RD 3, who tipped police to Henry Daniel Castellano, told it this way:

"I was having a drink in the East Bangor Hotel shortly after midnight when a man walked in with a package under his arm, explaining how tired he was.

"He said to me he walked four miles from Johnsonville (Castellano evidently meant Johnsonville) and he told me his car had broken down there.

"He offered anyone in the place a $10 bill to drive him to Easton. I said, 'You're as good as there.'"

Dotta said Castellano talked frequently about the robbery, while Dotta attempted to sell Castellano the car in which they were riding.

Dotta said he first became suspicious when Castellano told him his mother lived at the rear of the bus terminal, then did not know where the terminal is located.

"I wasn't afraid; I felt he was it," Dotta said later. He said he didn't consider the possibility of Castellano's having a gun because of the tight-fitting clothing the bank robber was wearing. Dotta said it would have been difficult if not impossible to conceal a gun on his person, dressed as he was.

Before leaving the bar, Castellano asked the bartender for a paper bag.

Dotta said Castellano had a bundle of what looked like $16,610 of the $34,238.75 which was taken in the robbery.

Castellano looked "awfully tired," according to Dotta. "You could tell he had walked quite a bit."

Dotta quoted Castellano as saying he "couldn't walk another step if I had to."

The ex-convict, from Edgewater, N. J., later told police he had had nothing to eat in the two days he hid out following the robbery.

Bank Holdup Suspect Found

VERIFYING the final vote recorded on the voting machines in the First Ward in East Stroudsburg are (right to left) County Commissioner John R. Lesoine, Dist. Atty. James Marsh and Atty. Edward Williams. In the doorway in the rear is County Commissioner Stanley Rader.

Voting Machine Shows Noes Win On County Bet Question

THE "NOES" came out in front in the verification of the votes in the first ward, East Stroudsburg, yesterday settling the Harness Racing Pari-Mutuel issue in the county.

Upon orders from the Monroe County Commissioners the election board, of the first ward, opened the machine to check the results of the April primary election. The order was issued because the election board of the First Ward did not complete the sealed ballot sent to the commissioners' office for the official counting.

When opened, the machines showed there were 101 votes registered "Yes" and 171 votes registered "No."

This figure was different from the number reported by phone to the County Commissioners, the night of election, by four votes.

Election Night

The report was 101 to 175.

Present at the opening of the machines were members of the election board, County Commissioners and their attorney, Leo Aetherman, and members of the Vacation Bureau and Monroe County Clergy.

Following the verification of the votes in the ward the Commissioners met in their office and counted the absentee and military ballots.

There were 23 ballots received. One was disqualified for not complying with the absentee ballot law.

11 to 10

The law says the application with the information requested and the persons signature, signifying they voted alone, is the only information, excluding the sealed ballot, to be included. Anything more or less automatically disqualifies the vote.

The vote on the issue of harness racing was 11 for racing and 10 against, with one ballot not voting on the issue.

The military vote registered six for, and two against with two not voting on the issue.

Unofficially the vote of harness racing issue was defeated in the April primary by 78 votes. The difference in the votes reported to the commissioners' office from the First Ward in East Stroudsburg the night of the election and the count yesterday and the votes of the absentee and military ballot showed the issue was defeated by 69 votes.

Woman Mocked Bank Robber; Jest Proved To Be Correct

By Bob Clark

Daily Record City Editor

EAST BANGOR—A daredevil East Bangor woman mocked Brodheadsville bank robber suspect Henry Castellano so much that the first captive in the area's biggest bank holdup in 18 years literally forced himself behind bars early yesterday morning.

Mrs. Joyce Price, a working housewife, was the person to come in contact officially with the youngest member of the robbery team which grabbed $34,238.75 from the West End branch of the Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. Wednesday.

Castellano, nabbed yesterday by Easton police, came in contact with Mrs. Price when the East Bangor woman was entering the East Bangor Hotel, situated on the main street of the borough north of Bangor.

Castellano, considered a nervous individual, told Mrs. Price "If you'll take me to Easton I'll give you $10."

Passes Off Gesture

The East Bangor woman passed off the gesture and told Castellano to come inside the hotel and possibly a ride to the Northampton County city would be forthcoming.

Castellano and Mrs. Price entered the business establishment and the conversation continued on prospects of "a ride to Easton" for the bank robber suspect.

It was at this point that Anthony Dotta, Bangor RD 3, intervened and offered to take the thin and previously jailed 31-year-old New Jersey resident to the county seat of Northampton.

The time of Castellano's appearance at the East Bangor

Hotel was estimated between 12:30 and 1 a.m. And during this period Mrs. Price and Mrs. Joyce Evans, proprietor of the

Ex-Convict Admits Part In Robbery

A 31-YEAR-OLD Edgewater, N.J., man was arrested yesterday in Easton and police say he has admitted being one of two men who robbed the West End Branch of Monroe Security Bank and Trust Co. at Brodheadsville Wednesday.

He was identified as Henry Daniel Castellano, whose record shows an arrest in Florida for breaking and entering, another in Englewood, N.J., and nearly seven years in prison.

Police recovered $16,610 of the $34,238.75 taken in the daylight holdup. They said Castellano secreted it in a locker at the Greyhound Post House, where he was arrested.

Anthony Dotta, 45, Bangor, RD 3, alerted police to Castellano after giving him a ride to Easton from the East Bangor Hotel where he met the ex-convict in the bar.

Became Suspicious

Dotta told police he became suspicious after Castellano talked incessantly about the robbery and showed an unfamiliarity with Easton, despite claiming that he had relatives living there.

Dotta dropped the man at the bus station, then reported his suspicions to Patrolman Joseph Budd of the Delaware River Bridge Commission.

Budd notified Easton police headquarters and two officers made the arrest at the bus station. Questioned about a paper bag he had been seen carrying, Castellano told police he had thrown it in a waste basket at the bus terminal.

Police searched the terminal but found nothing. Questioning of Mrs. Arlene Lore, night clerk, revealed that Castellano had asked for change for a locker in the terminal.

Fruitless Search

After searching the wash-room without finding a locker key, the patrolmen returned to their cruiser and found the key under the rear floor mat.

When they opened the locker they found the bag filled with $50, $20, $10, $5 and $1 bills. The bag was carefully tied with twine.

Police said Castellano told them he had an accomplice—who they said Castellano identified, but whose name was not revealed to newsmen—learned there had never been a bank robbery in the Brodheadsville area and thought police would be easily rattled by one.

Castellano said they "looked it over" four or five times and entered the bank once prior to the robbery. After holding up the bank, the pair fled towards Wind Gap, with Castellano making a "quick count" and division en route.

'My Own Fault'

When police pointed out that he had less than half the loot, Castellano told them: "If there's a mistake, it's my own fault."

Castellano said his accomplice kept the getaway car, a 1956 or 1957 aqua-colored two-door DeSoto sedan, which the accomplice owns.

Earlier the car had been described as a gunmetal gray Chrysler.

Castellano spent two days in a heavily-wooded area of Northampton County before approaching the hotel bar shortly after midnight Thursday.

He saw police on two occasions, he said, and the Dept. of Forests and Waters helicopter which police called into the search for the pair "flew right over me" once.

He was quoted as saying he had nothing to eat since the robbery.

Lee Wins Award At Concert

DOUGLAS Lee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Lee, 16 N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, last night received the Arion Award at the annual concert of Stroud Union High School Band.

A senior member of the organization, he received the award for good scholarship, cooperation, general musicianship, musical performance, ambition, attendance, diligence, inspiration to others, personal habits and best tradition of the school.

This was the 10th year such an award was presented at the local school. The presentation was made by Robert Haigh, president of the Music Parents Assn.

The winner of the award was decided upon vote of band members, faculty of the music department and the administration.

Approximately 500 persons attended the concert which featured Robert Kramendunk, baritone soloist formerly with Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians. He sang four numbers accompanied by the band.

Henry Roeder, student director, led the band in one number.

Members of the band presented Director John Pyle and his wife with a gift of a chaise lounge.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .
ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

A Mother's Prayer

Dear God . . . help me to live up to the faith I see in my child's eyes. Help me to be the person she thinks I am. I am so very human . . . yet to her I am wise as a sage. I am so very frail . . . yet to her I am a tower of strength.

I can bind her cuts and bruises . . . I can soothe her small hurts, both physical and mental . . . I can give her love . . . I can protect and cherish her. Yet I can never be half of all I must be, without You to guide me.

Help me . . . and watch over her. In Your Church, teach her the things that are beyond my power . . . so that she will one day be a better woman than I; and in her turn, a better mother.

Lagging Diplomacy

Wide acceptance has been gained for the truism that modern technology has outpaced man's sociological knowledge and controls. Some hard thinking had better be devoted to a particular and highly dangerous facet of the matter—the gap between scientific advances and the concerns of diplomacy.

Statesmen are inclined to lag far behind scientists. This was perilous enough years ago. In our time, when teams of research men and technicians are pushing back the frontiers at a tremendous rate, the danger is imminent.

The nations worry, for example, about planes flying over their territory. Yet the diplomats pay virtually no attention to the fact that at least one satellite capable of scanning the globe and taking pictures of what it sees is now spinning in orbit. The fact that this satellite is American is only cold comfort, since the Russians or some other power may have another in orbit tomorrow.

Diplomats also have been worrying the old bone of territorial waters, trying to reach agreement on extending sovereignty beyond the present three-mile limit. At the same time, they are doing nothing effective about the question of sovereignty—or perhaps the renunciation of sovereignty—in space.

Other examples of this gap could be cited. A dozen satellites are circling the earth as this is written, and there is not a vestige of international control over them nor any real prospect that agreement on such control may be reached in the near future. The statesmen should begin paying more attention to the developments and problems emerging from scientific advances. A 19th century approach to diplomacy is not adequate in the last half of the 20th.

Newspapers Prove Aid To Students

Newspapers are being used increasingly in junior and senior high schools, colleges and universities to broaden the education of the students.

They have been used to good effect in many Beaver County classrooms. Teachers find them excellent textbooks in contemporary living.

Reading newspapers has been part of the school curriculum in Austin, Texas, for two years. There teachers have found that subject matter has been made more meaningful and reading has been stimulated.

A teacher in Mishawaka, Ind., has reported that her freshmen students have taken to reading newspapers "like ducks to water." Parents have informed her that their children "read the paper with greater understanding and even discuss the contents with them."

She cited one boy who read in the paper of a plan to re-route trucks in South Bend, Ind., to relieve traffic congestion. He submitted a different plan, which the city may try as an alternative.

Perhaps most significant of all, the teacher, Mrs. Rae Stoll, pointed out that the newspaper will be the only textbook many of the students will have after they graduate. The same thing has been said many times by other educators.

A newspaper reports history in the making.

Reports From Congress

Medical Care An Issue

by Congressional Quarterly

Washington — The fierce lobbying campaign on Capitol Hill over the Forand bill makes it certain that federal health benefits for the aged will be one of the major domestic issues of the 1960 Presidential and Congressional campaigns.

Four Democratic Presidential hopefuls, Sen. John F. Kennedy, Hubert H. Humphrey, Stuart Symington and Wayne Morse, have already endorsed the bill or variants of it. The Forand bill calls for having the Federal Government pay hospital, nursing and medical costs for the aged and financing the costs by raising Social Security payroll taxes.

Many observers believe the Democratic strategy in 1960 will be to pass the bill and lure the President to veto it in an election year, in the face of a formidable potential voting bloc of nearly 16 million persons 65 or older.

The President has indicated he would probably veto the bill in its current form, despite electoral hazards for his party in November, because he considers the principle of compulsory federal health insurance for the aged a step toward socialized medicine. The GOP's task, in the political infighting over the Forand bill, will be to convince the older voters that there are better and more effective ways of caring for their health than use of the Social Security mechanism.

Lobbying Efforts — In the background of the political issue is one of the heaviest lobbying campaigns in recent years. On one side of the issue are labor unions, led by the AFL-CIO, and such citizens' groups as Americans for Democratic Action.

The opponents of the Forand bill are led by the American Medical Assn., representing about 175,000 of 225,000 physicians, most other medical groups and the insurance industry. Many business groups, such as the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. and the National Assn. of Manufacturers, also are aligned with the AMA.

The pro-Forand forces have attempted to characterize their opposition as showing a disregard for the aged population. The AMA and its allies have countered with the assertion that the Forand bill would be a step toward socialized medicine. Both factions so far have had considerable success in arousing public opinion, but neither has yet gained a distinct advantage over the other.

The AFL-CIO has urged its 13 million members to write to Washington to demand enactment of the Forand bill. Union-sponsored rallies have been held in all parts of the country to stir up grass roots support for the legislation.

The United Auto Workers, an AFL-CIO affiliate, has distributed thousands of postcards to be signed and mailed to Congress bearing the following biblical quotation:

"Cast me not off in the time of old age; forsake me not when my strength faileth."

The campaign of the anti-Forand groups has not been as direct. The AMA and the insurance companies have concentrated on trying to prove to Congress and the public that they could solve the insurance problems of the aged without federal legislation. The AMA has urged state medical societies to expedite the development of low-cost insurance plans.

The Health Insurance Assn. of America, representing 275 companies which write about 80 percent of the Nation's health insurance coverage, has urged its members not to cancel health policies "solely because of the deterioration of health . . ." and to draw up special plans for pensions over 65. The AMA and several insurance companies have taken advertisements in newspapers and magazines to explain their reasons for opposing Federal health insurance.

The anti-Forand organization also have sponsored a "write - your - Congressman" campaign, but it apparently has not been able to match the tremendous volume of mail from labor unions. The AMA and its allies are not discouraged, however. They argue that a few thoughtful letters from doctors and businessmen carry more weight with legislators than a larger number of form letters and postcards passed out by the unions.

Congressional Reaction — How has Congress itself reacted to the tactics of the AMA, the AFL-CIO and other organizations trying to influence the fate of the Forand bill?

One outspoken opponent of the bill, Rep. Thomas B. Curtis (R-Mo.), said the AFL-CIO's campaign to stir grass roots support for the measure has failed. Curtis, who is ranking GOP member of the Social Security Subcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee, said labor leaders had created a "synthetic" issue which had failed to catch on with the rank-and-file unionist. He added that the unions' biblical postcard was "blasphemous".

Another Ways and Means Committee member, Rep. Thaddeus M. Machrowicz (D-Mich.), disagreed with Curtis. Machrowicz, who represents a labor district in Detroit, said the enthusiastic response of over 12,000 persons at a UAW rally in Detroit was ample evidence that "at the grass roots level, the most important issue of the day is the need for the Forand bill."

Caskie Stinnett is an unlikely name for an author, but there is one by that name. In fact, he's just written a hilarious novel called "Out of the Red." Furthermore, he's been writing funny pieces for Holiday magazine for years. Recently, the director of promotion for Holiday sent a private poll to readers demanding, "Who or what is Caskie Stinnett?" Some of the answers were vaguely disconcerting: 1. A small musical instrument played with the earlobes. 2. Judge Crater's debutante niece. 3. That stomach settler with a secret ingredient. 4. Yes —provided Russia is willing to do the same.

Off The Record

By Robert Clark, City Editor

HARRY Freedman, a man who has a flair for doing many things, penned two poems dealing with Mother's Day.

Both are good in material and will touch the hearts of any person.

The following are the two messages appropriate not only for this Sunday but every day in the year.

MOTHER'S DAY
Mother's Day is here again,
And I am mighty glad,
For there's no other,
Like a Mother,
The best friend I ever had.

She worked hard to raise a family,
All our love she has won,
She did her best,
And deserves a rest,
For a job that is well done.

So today, we honor Mother
For her health, let us pray
While this day just comes yearly,
Let us say very clearly,
Every day—is mother's Day.

IN MEMORY OF MY MOTHER
Mother's Day is here again,
And I feel mighty sad,
For there's no other,
Like a Mother,
The best friend I ever had.

She worked hard to raise a family,
All our love she has won,
She did her best,
And deserves a rest,
For a job that is well done.

So today, we honor Mother's
For her health, let us pray,
While this day comes yearly,
Let us say very clearly,
Every day—is Mother's Day.

Interpreting The News

Russia Welcomes Serious Incident

By J. M. Roberts

Associated Press News Analyst
Nikita Khrushchev's pessimism and the gleeful reception by the Soviet Parliament of news that an American plane has been shot down leaves the British as the only ones who are even whistling as the Big Four approach the summit graveyard.

The spectacle offered by the Supreme Soviet, bursting into applause when the Premier announced the plane shooting, is a truer indication of the state of world affairs than all of the words which have been passed back and forth about peace.

It is quite possible that Khrushchev and his rubber-stamp Parliament did not know at the time that the plane was a scientific research plane flown by a civilian.

But unless they are incredibly ignorant they did know one very important thing — that nobody need fear surprise attack by the United States.

And they should have known that an attempt to stir up more bad blood than already aroused by the incident itself is bound to be taken by the world as a political effort to frighten the West before the summit conference.

Aside from the plane affair, the Khrushchev speech indicates his acceptance of the estimate already applied by most of the world to the chances of progress toward peace at the summit.

He should know better than anyone, since it is Soviet aggressiveness which has created the threatening issues to be discussed. There's little or no hope.

The Allen-Scott Report

Washington — The atomic-powered plane project, on which more than $1 billion has been spent since 1945, is in a tail spin from which there is strong likelihood it may not pull out.

Two powerful opponents are determinedly bent on shelving the long-lagging project by shutting off its funds.

Rep. Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, and Budget Director Maurice Stans have joined forces to kill a $75 million item in the Atomic Energy Commission's budget to continue work on the nuclear plane in the fiscal year starting July 1.

They propose to do this through the stratagem of making a new "study" of the project by a special Appropriations subcommittee — headed by Cannon.

That means the end of it in the blunt opinion of project supporters.

They predict Cannon's group will recommend it be axed, and the full Appropriations Committee will follow suit by slashing the $75 million from the AEC budget.

An irate warning against that was voiced at a private Appropriations meeting by Rep. Melvin Price (D., Ill.), head of the Joint Atomic Research Subcommittee and a long-time champion of the nuclear plant project.

Without disclosing his source of information, Price asserted the Russians "may show the President a flying atomic-powered plane when he visits there next month."

Crux of this backstage hassle is Budget Director Stans' contention that it will require at least another $500 million to develop the prototype of a nuclear-powered plane.

He holds this money would be better spent "on nuclear powered missiles and rockets—of which there are several highly classified projects."

More Ramifications — To Representative Price the Budget Bureau's argument is "merely another excuse to scuttle the atomic plane."

"The Budget Bureau has been trying to kill this project for four years, and only the intervention of Congress has saved it," he told the Appropriations Committee. "Now they are trying to booby-trap you into going along with them, at the very time the Russians are getting ready to fly their first atomic plane."

"If the Committee falls into this trap, the responsibility will rest with it. When the Soviet unveils its atomic plane, the American people won't remember that it was the Budget Bureau that sabotaged our project. What they will angrily recall is that this committee killed the $75 million appropriation to continue this highly essential work. Your heads will be on the chopping block, not the Budget Bureau. It doesn't have to run for re-election."

Still pending in the Air Force's budget is $75 million to continue its work on this project. However, Stans has strongly intimated that if this money is approved by Congress, it will be impounded by the President.

That has been done with $157 million of the $75 million Congress voted the Air Force for this purpose in the current fiscal year.

A startling admission about the 12-year-old nuclear plane project was made by Lieutenant General R. C. Wilson, Deputy Air Force Chief of Staff for Research and Development, at a private meeting of the Joint Atomic Committee.

He indicated the U. S. might now have an atomic plane if a different "approach" had been followed.

"I think that if we had concentrated on the direct cycle," Wilson said, "we probably would have had a plane that could have flown on nuclear power. It might not have been a good plane, but it would have flown . . . In recent months, the program has been revised to stress prospects that hold promise of real progress."

Fallout — Those ATLAS intercontinental ballistic missiles, installed at Warren Airbase, Cheyenne, Wyo., are being equipped with more powerful nuclear warheads. The Joint Atomic Committee has been told by the Defense Department that the new warheads have more than double the destructive power of their predecessors . . . Former Atomic Commissioner Thomas Murray, now chief consultant of the Joint Atomic Committee, is convinced Russia has "carried out underground nuclear tests without our knowledge in the past year." He cites a number of facts to support that contention in his new book "Nuclear Policy for War and Peace." In this book, Murray also charges that "at the Geneva conference of technical experts in the summer of 1958, the Russians had a wonderful opportunity to pick up important information about U. S. detection capabilities. They learned, for example, that it would take at least 180 seismic stations, manned partially by Western scientific personnel, and with a large fraction of these stations on Soviet territory, before the U. S. could feel at all safe about its ability to detect with accuracy nuclear explosions down to 5 kilotons."

Eagle Scouts Honor Court Held; Members Are Lauded

"ONE of the greatest accomplishments a boy can attain is to achieve the rank of Eagle Scout."

Thus spoke Tobyhanna Signal Depot Chaplain (Capt.) Francis P. Patterson at the Eagle Court of Honor at Arlington Heights School in Stroudsburg, last night.

"May I say with great emphasis," Chaplain Patterson told the audience, "that if you are a father, mother, brother, sister, or just a friend of a boy, make it your business to help him become a Scout and to go all the way to an Eagle Scout."

"I have a deep conviction that next to being a good Christian working for the Kingdom of God, is the honor and privilege of having an active part in the promotion and expansion of the Scout movement."

The Eagle Scout Court of Honor was sponsored by the Delaware Valley Area Council, Boy Scouts of America. The Pocono District of the Council was host.

Elmer Morgan, Council Scout Executive of Easton, told the 13 new Eagle Scouts: "As an Eagle you become a guide to other scouts below you. You be-

No County Seniors Listed For Laurel Blossom Fete

NO SENIORS from Monroe County's eight high schools will compete in the Miss Pocono Mountains pageant, Mrs. Robert Miller, director, said yesterday.

Mrs. Miller said several have dropped out because of other commitments falling on the same date as the May 14 contest.

In addition, Marcia Mink, East Stroudsburg Area Joint High School senior, was required to drop out after it was learned her 18th birthday anniversary is after the Miss America pageant is over.

The rules require that entrants must be single and between the ages of 18 and 28 except for high school seniors now 17 who will become 18 before the national finals on Sept. 5.

Miss Mink, however, will present a dance during the pageant program and has indicated she will be the first entrant in next year's Miss Pocono Mountains contest.

Also eligible are college or employed girls living in Monroe, Carbon, Pike and Wayne County and students at East Stroudsburg State College.

The local pageant is sponsored by the Stroudsburg Business and Professional Women's Club for the benefit of its welfare fund.

Mental Unit Plans Fete May 12

THE Monroe County Mental Health Assn. will meet for dinner at the Penn-Stroud Hotel Thursday, May 12, at 6:30 p.m. Ralph E. Davis, Director of Psychological Services and Activity Treatment Services at Clarks Summit State Hospital, will address the group on certain aspects of mental health, illustrating his talk with motion pictures.

Dr. John Abbruzzese, president of the Assn., will direct a short business meeting, when election of officers will take place.

Davis has served as staff assistant, personnel relations, for the Aluminum Company of America and as Chief Psychologist for the Woodville State Hospital. He holds a Bachelor's degree from Duquesne University, a Master's degree from Kent State University, and is a Doctoral candidate at the University of Ottawa.

The public is invited to attend this meeting. Reservations for the dinner may be made by calling the Monroe County Mental Health office, HA 1-1299.

Dr. Noar urged to the task force of teacher education, that teachers receive more training in dealing with problems of human relations.

Her most pertinent objection, from the Pennsylvania standpoint, was to religious instruction in public schools. The state law requiring daily Bible readings in public schools is now being challenged in the federal courts.

She urged that a survey be made of the 14 teacher colleges and 56 universities with education departments to determine what courses dealing with problems of human relations are missing from the required courses.

She further urged more practical field experience for new teachers in schools where underprivileged groups and non-whites predominate.

She also suggested that school faculties meet weekly to discuss the social problems of their students.

Funeral services for E. E. Liming, Caldwell, N.J., will be held Sunday in Caldwell.

He is survived by his wife Cora Kitchen Liming. Interment will be in Stroudsburg Cemetery at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Air Pollution Blamed On Solid Fuels

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania's widespread use of solid fuels and its sizeable metal industry Friday were listed as two of the state's major air pollution problems.

Victor H. Sussman, chief of the State Health Department's Air Pollution Control Section, said congestion in the state's larger cities and the burning of coal mine wastes also were major air pollution problems.

Legislation passed by the 1959 General Assembly requires the department to conduct surveys and provide technical services related to air pollution control.

A State Air Pollution Commission, created by the legislation, is expected to be named by Gov. Lawrence after the Legislature returns June 6. The appointments will require Senate confirmation.

"One of the major problems comes from the burning of solid fuels," Sussman said in an interview. "This state is quite a large consumer of solid fuels so we have a big problem."

Sussman pointed out that the problems are different in various parts of the state. He said the Air Pollution Commission would attack the problem on a regional basis rather than use statewide requirement.

"The first thing to do is to determine what the problem is," he said. "Then you can let the people who are polluting the air know what they are to do, what goals they are expected to meet."

Although a number of cities have asked for surveys, Sussman said studies would be on a priority basis which will be set up by the commission.

He said the problem in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and other urban areas is that so many people are crowding into the area that the available air is saturated.

Firemen's Relief Funds Gain $17,000 In County

Record Harrisburg Bureau
HARRISBURG—Payments totaling $17,830.37 have been forwarded to four boroughs and 16 townships in Monroe County as reimbursements from the Fire Insurance Tax Fund, the State Auditor General's Dept. said.

The money for the local municipalities is for payment to the various firemen's relief funds. It is derived from a two per cent tax on premiums of out-of-state fire insurance companies who do business in Pennsylvania.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

To all mothers, everywhere—have a happy! And I don't know why you shouldn't. Up in Barrett, mothers and daughters are going to make like Curtilecks and sit on a cushion while the fathers and sons, prepare, serve and clean-up afterwards.

A gentle tip, boys: don't brag there's nothing to this cooking business and can't see why women make such a fuss or you're likely to inherit the job permanently.

The Barrett Boy Scouts are taking their mothers out to dinner Monday night — at a diner, natch! And the East Stroudsburg bands are going to play for their Band Mothers. And they're having dinners and banquets and programs all over the place, all in honor of Mothers—who no doubt will need a vacation next week to get rested up.

But from the looks of that social calendar nobody's going to get rested up from anything — especially over-eating with a dinner or luncheon and sometimes both — scheduled for almost every day.

But I'm not going to even think about it now—just about getting off on my own Mother's Day weekend, at Pete's fraternity. Haven't been so excited since the Junior Prom.

But speaking of mothers — grandmothers also have their fun, especially Emma Knob who brought the Garden Club story to the office trailing behind her five grandchildren like clouds of glory.

Film Strips To Be Shown At Arlington Hts.

June Show of Fashions in Barrett

Barrett Community Club announces that it will present a Fashion Show on June 24, 1960 at 8:30 p.m. in the auditorium at Buck Hill. Chairman for the event is Mrs. James Manhart, with Mrs. Arthur McCambridge and Mrs. John Wolfe acting as co-chairmen.

This will be the fifth fashion show presented by the club. Revenue derived from its presentation will be used for the past to help support Federation projects, local organizations, including the Barrett Welfare Fund, and the Barrett Pre-School. The Barrett Pre-School was organized by the Barrett Community Club in 1954 and has been in continuous operation since that time. Each year the club donates the largest percentage of its income to the school since the low tuition charge does not provide sufficient funds to maintain it.

The theme for the show will be "Out of This World," and the narration will be done by Mrs. Donald Williams. The following committee chairmen have been appointed: stage setting: Mrs. Richard Shoemith; program: Mrs. Leon Meyung Jr. with Miss Barbara Carlton as co-chairman; tickets: Mrs. William Gairney; music: Mrs. Charles Schelme; posters: Mrs. Stephen Moffett; publicity: Mrs. Earl Thomas Jr.

Stores in Barrett Township, Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg will display fashions modeled by club members and men and women from the township and surrounding areas.

700 Girl Scouts Expected To Rally Round Flag At Promised Land May 21

Almost 700 Girl Scouts are expected at the county-wide rally to be held next Saturday at Promised Land State Park. Theme of the rally, with Mrs. Ira Nagler as director, will be "This—Our New Flag."

Highlighted during the Juliette Low ceremony during which the 50 stars will be pinned to the flag with each troop's contribution to the World Friendship Fund.

The two Juliette Low representatives from each troop will march to the music of the new Girl Scout Band of the East Stroudsburg Neighborhood carrying the picture of the flag of the state her troop represents and the star for the new flag.

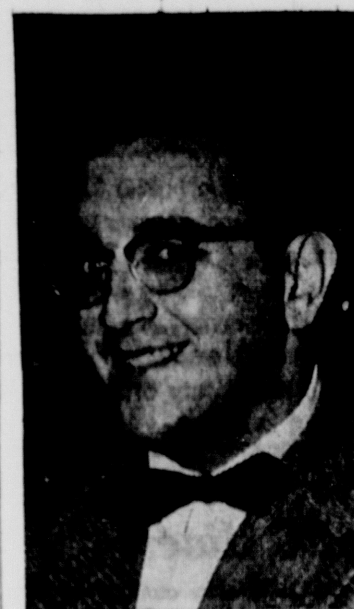

The rally will begin at 11 a.m. with lunch which will be planned by each troop either on charcoal stoves or nosebag lunches with the committee providing sodas and dessert.

If transportation is not available within the troop, leaders are asked to call Mrs. Roger Acker at the Girl Scout House or Mrs. Ira Nagler. No girls should stay home because of lack of transportation.

The campfire songs will include Waring's "It's Great to Be A Scout" and the Caravan Song. All Intermediate Scouts will take part in a Virginia Reel; the Brownies will present a Hawaiian Dance; the Senior Scouts an Indian Dance. The Girl Scout Band will play and the program will close with a friendship circle and taps.

Mrs. Nagler has also announced a surprise feature in store involving, she said, "little people from outer space."

She also predicted a sunny day for the great gathering. However, in the unlikely event of rain, the rally will be held at 2 p.m. at the Armory in East Stroudsburg instead of 11 a.m. at Promised Land.

Newfoundland—Summertime will be fun-time, according to plans laid this week by the little girls of Brownie Troop Two under the leadership of Mrs. Emil Wohlfart.

Exciting activities are being planned. The girls will observe "out-of-door month" in May, but their hike will be scheduled on June 4 instead of on Memorial Day as originally planned. Also in June will be a trip to Avoca Airport.

In July, the troop will go to Promised Land for a hayride and cookout. August's activity is a visit to Mrs. Santa's Doll Shop in Canadensis. September will find the brownies at a hunting camp for a day's outing.

Regular weekly meetings will continue up to and including June 6.

The fly-ups are continuing their arts and crafts work with Mrs. Clayton Northup, Kathleen Croft and Bonnie Price as leaders. They are acting out the laws in pantomime.

While the older girls are occupied with preparations for girl scouting, the two younger patrols have been learning to lay and follow trails, and have participated in a nature hunt. Mrs. Wohlfart and Phyllis Cron are in charge.

Smooth Sailing On Wash-Days Here

Pocono Lake—Miss Sylvia Mary Harrold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Harrold of Pocono Pines, was married on April 23 at 3 p.m. in the Salem United Church of Christ, Pocono Lake, to Richard Everett Dunning, of 199 Washington St., East Stroudsburg.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Dunning, of 101 Ridgeway St., East Stroudsburg.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Elmer Meissner, before an altar decorated with Easter lilies. Musical selections included "O Promise Me," "Oh Perfect Love" and "Wedding Prayer." Mrs. Eugene Miller was organist and Charles Henning was soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white Chantilly lace over Skinnet satin, with a sweetheart neckline and a matching lace jacket. Her veil fell from a crown of rhinestones and seed pearls and she wore a pearl necklace with rhinestones and heart-shaped rhinestone earrings. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, hyacinths and streamers.

Miss Rose Meekes was her maid of honor. She wore an off-the-shoulder dress of pink nylon and net, and carried a colonial nosegay of white and pink carnations with a center of blue daisies.

The bridesmaids, Miss Doris Meekes and Miss Sylvia Tallada, wore similar gowns in pastel shades of blue and green with similar colonial bouquets. All of the attendants wore rhinestone heart pendants, the gift of the bride.

Carl Yost, of Stroudsburg, was best man. Ushers were David Heller and Charles Heller, of Binghamton, N. Y., cousins of the bride.

A reception was held in the auditorium of the Salem Church at 5 p.m. with the members of the church Guild assisting in serving.

After a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Dunning will make their home in the Walker Miller Apartments.

The bride's mother wore a green print dress with a coat lined with the same print. The bridegroom's mother wore a suit in shades of tan and tan. Their corsages were of white and pink carnations.

For traveling the bride wore a beige and pink dress, beige coat and hat with matching shoes.

The bride attended Tobyhanna Twp. High School and the bridegroom, East Stroudsburg High School. He is employed by the Bell Telephone Co., Stroudsburg.

The carnation was designated by Anna Jarvis as a tribute to mothers, but the years found her embittered. Mother's Day was being commercialized, she complained, and it had not been her idea to have people making financial gain of the observance. Florists tried to reason with her that it was SHE who had set the ball rolling, not they—but she was not consoled. Her greatest success, she mourned, had also been her defeat.

On a Mother's Day prior to her death in a sanitarium, Anna Jarvis was interviewed by a reporter posing as a delivery man. She was miserably unhappy. "I wish I had never started this," she exclaimed. Yet forty nations other than her own had adopted Mother's Day, and she had spent the greater part of her inheritance to make this possible.

Mother's Day is sad too, for those mothers who will be forgotten. There are all too many who will not receive any gift . . . any card . . . or even any gesture of affection or respect. This is the way of life, and it is tragic. But as long as human nature remains self-centered, inconsiderate, and indifferent, that is how it will be. Mothers are broad-minded enough to realize this, and to know that they are not alone if they are overlooked. But the string is there.

This column, as I glance back over it, is not a particularly jolly one . . . is it? I don't really mean it to be. I mean it to be a reminder that IF you have a mother living this Mother's Day, you owe it to her and to yourself to say, in some way, "I love you." So what if you can't afford even our least expensive Wyckoff gift suggestion or a card? You CAN afford a four cent stamp can't you? Then WRITE A NOTE. It may arrive late, but your Mother will cherish it.

Just the other day I was privileged to read one of the most beautiful letters anyone could receive—mailed to a local Mother and Dad. It was a letter that said in essence, "I was born of love . . . to love . . . and to be loved. I thank God for you, for my husband, and for my child." Do you know, I might feel this but even with all my daily experience plugging away at the typewriter, I would find it difficult to write. Would you? That's why the gift is really an easy way out of a tender situation. But, however, you handle it, DO SOMETHING for your Mother on Mother's Day. For shame if you don't!

Others participating in the program will be Hans Buedicker, Michael Finelli, Hans Rahls in an instrumental trip; Eleanor Bender, vocal solo with Mrs. Yost as accompanist; Helen Jollos, piano solo; Lorraine Toner, vocal solos accompanied by Lucy F. Quig.

The Wyckoff Shopper

The Wyckoff Shopper

Tomorrow is Mother's Day, a day when mothers by the thousands will be receiving lovely cards . . . beautiful gifts . . . flowers, from sons and daughters who, many times, rely upon this one gesture each year to convey their affection and respect to "Mom." For the past few days we have been doing a great deal of talking about "Her Day," here at Wyckoff's. We have urged you in ads to remember her with lingerie . . . dainty house dresses . . . toiletries . . . and books. We have reminded you over the air that Wyckoff's is stocked with thousands of gift suggestions for Mother from the International Gift Department in our center aisle, to the housewares and fashion departments. We have talked trade names such as Revlon, Russell Stover, Karen Kane, Kay Windsor, Whitman, and Rubinstein.

But as I think about Mother's Day, I am also saddened because basically most commemorative days are touched by solemnity. This month's issue of Readers Digest tells a poignant story about Anna Jarvis, the woman who is responsible for the observance. Had beautiful red-haired Anna been successful in her one great romance, there might not have been a Mother's Day. But her romance failed her . . . she became embittered . . . and from that time forward she devoted herself to her blind sister and her widowed mother. Then, when the mother died, she began spending her inheritance on the idea of Mother's Day, to be observed nationally on the date of her own mother's death. Her campaign was a forceful, unrelenting one—the kind that, one might gather, creates in the mind's eye the picture of a rather formidable woman whose power is beyond measure.

The carnation was designated by Anna Jarvis as a tribute to mothers, but the years found her embittered. Mother's Day was being commercialized, she complained, and it had not been her idea to have people making financial gain of the observance. Florists tried to reason with her that it was SHE who had set the ball rolling, not they—but she was not consoled. Her greatest success, she mourned, had also been her defeat.

This is the way of life, and it is tragic. But as long as human nature remains self-centered, inconsiderate, and indifferent, that is how it will be. Baseball Vows To Fight Kefauver Control Bill

NEW YORK (AP) — Organized baseball vowed Friday an all-out fight against the legislation proposed by Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) that would put the sport under the antitrust laws.

Ford Frick, baseball commissioner, termed the Kefauver bill "vicious, discriminatory and disastrous" at a press conference.

"This bill is absolutely unacceptable because it goes beyond antitrust exemptions and attempts to spell out the operating rules for baseball. It is the most harmful bill for baseball ever proposed," he said.

Frick did make one concession. He said it would be perfectly acceptable to baseball if it were placed in the same category as football, basketball and hockey, with the same restrictions.

"I think the bill embracing football, basketball and hockey is a good one," he said. "If they treat baseball the same way, they'd have a more acceptable bill. It keeps their draft, exempts them from specified television restrictions and makes no limitation of player control."

"Remember, this would be a federal law," said Frick, referring to Kefauver's bill. "Once it passes for perpetuity. If passed, it would change the whole structure of baseball. It would result in the elimination of the minor leagues and a financial loss to the men who through the years have supported minor league operations through money, time, effort and ingenuity."

The Kefauver bill would limit a club to control of 100 players, give drafted players a team choice, and stipulate new rules for future major league status conflicting greatly with the present code.

The 65-year-old baseball leader, making no attempt to conceal his anger, took apart the bill, proposal by proposal.

Wilt May Be Back Says Boss

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — There is a 50-50 chance that Wilt Chamberlain will return to the Philadelphia Warriors of the National Basketball Assn. next season, Warriors' owner Eddie Gottlieb said Thursday.

Gottlieb told a luncheon group, "Wilt may or may not be back with us. But right now I would say chances are 50-50 he'll be back. In fact, the odds might be more in our favor than ever."

Gottlieb leaves for Europe late this month to supervise a tour of the Harlem Globetrotters. Under terms of a contract signed with the Trotters, Chamberlain will join the group the first week in June.

Chamberlain announced in March after the Warriors were eliminated from the NBA playoffs by Boston in the semifinals that he would not play in the NBA next season.

Rote, Brown Sign Pacts

NEW YORK (AP) — End Kyle Rote has signed his 10th contract with the club and offensive tackle Roosevelt Brown his eighth, the New York Giants announced Thursday.

Rote, 32, former star at Southern Methodist, is the all-time Giant leader in pass reception yardage with 3,370. His 210 receptions include 32 for touchdowns.

Brown has been a unanimous all-league selection the last five years.

Pastrano Whips Johnson

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Willie Pastrano, the nimble, dancing master from Miami Beach, scored a unanimous decision over Alonzo Johnson Friday night in their 10-round bout at Fairground Coliseum.

Pastrano, a light heavyweight returning to the ranks of the heavyweights for another crack at the man who beat him here last July, used a fast jab to keep Johnson, from Philadelphia, off balance during the late part of the nationally televised fight.

Johnson, who has a devastating punch, concentrated his attack on Pastrano's body but could not get close enough to make the strategy work against his 24-year-old opponent.

Johnson, who came in at 188 pounds, now has an 18-5 record while the win gave Pastrano a 53-8-5 mark.

Howe Named NHL Best

MONTREAL (AP) — Gordie Howe, the veteran right winger who helped the Detroit Red Wings out of the National Hockey League cellar last season, Friday was named the league's most valuable player for an unprecedented fifth time.

Howe polled 118 points in the voting for the Hart Trophy by hockey writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities. Bobby Hull of the Chicago Black Hawks, the scoring champion, was runner-up with 55 points. Goalie Glenn Hall of Chicago was third with 44.

He is a big favorite on the West Coast, where he starred with Southern California before joining the Celtics. A master jump shooter, Sharmen has been one of the premier stars in the National Basketball Assn. for years. He is 33.

White Sox Win 3-0

Score, Staley Hold Nats To Three Hits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Herb Score and Gerry Staley combined for a three-hit shutout of Washington Friday night. Pinch hitters Ted Kluszewski and Earl Torgerson drove in all the runs in the 3-0 Chicago victory.

The victory kept the White Sox in a virtual tie with New York for the American League lead. The Yankees edged Kansas City 8-7. Score pitched three-hit ball for six innings, leaving for a pinch hitter in the top of the seventh when Chicago scored all three runs. It was Score's first victory since last July 3. He had lost seven in a row.

Chicago's runs came after two were out. Al Smith hit a pop fly double to center. Jim Landis walked and then pinch hitter Kluszewski and Torgerson singled to clinch the victory for Chicago.

hotel, played havoc with the alleged bank holdup man. First Mrs. Price, not thinking at all that Castellano was actually sought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and State Police, said, "You look like that bank robber who held up the bank the other day."

Continues To Harass She continued to harass Castellano with "Where are those horn-rimmed glasses you wore in the holdup?"

With that she plucked his eyebrows where the glasses, worn in the robbery at Broadheadville, were once in place.

Castellano got disturbed plenty at this point and asked Mrs. Evans to intervene.

Castellano said, "If I were a bank robber do you think I would be buying dime beers, I'd be buying three maled beverages in the establishment three times despite the large amount of folding money on his person."

But this didn't phase Mrs. Price as she continued to pepper "bank robbery" questions at Castellano.

Finally the package which Castellano explained was "dirty laundry" came into the conversation. The package which later turned out to be his share of the loot—$16,610—was tossed back and forth for a spell with Mrs. Price handling the cash many times without knowing the contents.

Still featuring her jibes at the bank robbery evidence, Mrs. Price said, "I suppose you have the money in there in 5, 10 and 20-dollar denominations."

Castellano was quick to retort that it was laundry that he carried in the package with blue paper wrapped around it. The suspect saw three times the money grabbed by Mrs. Price. But he was quick to get its return via quick hands.

Lightly Dressed Dressed in clothes befitting 90-degree summer time, Castellano eventually asked Mrs. Evans for a bag "because the laundry was beginning to make its way through the paper covering."

Mrs. Evans obliged and even helped Castellano put the then not known cash into the brown-looking grocery store bag. It was at this point that Castellano got anxious and urged Dotta, his driver, to leave for Easton—his eventual downfall.

Mrs. Price felt but did know for sure that Castellano was one of the two men involved in the robbery.

However, she said, "Many times during our conversation he said he was from Stroudsburg, Baltimore and other points. But he was always contradicting himself."

At one time he said, "I'm living in a motel near East Stroudsburg near Shaffer's Inn (Route 209)."

Later Mrs. Price and Mrs. Evans collaborated that he said he came from Baltimore or other areas around the eastern part of the United States. Both, however, said he was "throwing the bull."

Mrs. Price's harassing and ever-pressing remarks of Mrs. Evans kept Castellano on his guard and off balance during his half-hour tenure in the hotel, each woman remarked.

Dotta's brave trip to Easton was the finishing touch to the first half of the duo-team, daytime bank robbers.
